

Andi Oliver

Award winning TV Chef and Broadcaster Andi Oliver enjoys a rich-and-varied career, with food and music being at the forefront throughout. Andi is a regular face on screen-as the host-of the BBC's-Great British Menu, which she has hosted since 2020, having been a judge for four seasons. Andi is a popular presenter of Channel 4's-Food Unwrapped-and a contributing chef and host on-BBC's-Saturday Kitchen. 2024 saw the launch of her BBC Two-show,-Andi Oliver's Fabulous Feasts, where Andi joins-a variety of fabulous communities across the UK-to-celebrate-food with heart and soul. Previously-Andi-was the-host-of Sky Arts Live Book Club and-Channel 4's-Beat the Chef. Andi co-hosts the-'Stirring it up'-podcast with her daughter,-broadcaster and-presenter-Miquita Oliver, where they welcome special guests into her home to gather around the kitchen table for a feast of laughter and deep conversation.-The podcast launched its 4th series in summer 2024. 2023 saw the-long-awaited-launch of-Andi's-cookbook-The Pepperpot Diaries: Stories From My Caribbean Table.-The book features-both traditional and new recipes, cherished ingredients and vibrant flavours from across the Caribbean. When it comes to-radio, Andi-is a regular panel member on BBC Radio 4's-'The Kitchen Cabinet'-alongside Jay-Rayner, as-well as a contributor to Radio 4's-award-winning-'The Food Programme'. In 2018-Andi-followed in the footsteps of Yotam Ottolenghi-and-Giorgio Locatelli-when she-was appointed Head-Judge-alongside Sheila Dillon for the prestigious BBC Food & Farming awards. Outside of the realm of-food, Andi-hosted the award winning Jazz 365 for BBC4 in 2019 and along with her daughter Miquita-Oliver, took part in-The Road To Saigon-for BBC2 and-hosted-The Cheltenham Literature Festival for Sky Arts.-Andi-and Miquita also travelled back to the Caribbean for BBC2 in 2022 for a-two-part documentary series that-saw-them connect with their past family-roots and discover where they came-from.

