

Robbie O'Neill

Represented by:

Jago Irwin

Robbie O'Neill is a working class actor and writer born and raised in Liverpool by a single mother. Having formerly worked as a manual labourer, Robbie studied acting at Bristol Old Vic Theatre school having lost his job during the 2008 financial crash, and is also a graduate of the Royal Court Writers Group and the Liverpool Everyman Young Writers.

He wrote the award winning short film "Seconds Out", which was the directorial debut of long time collaborator, Philip Barantini. He is currently developing a show with Wild Mercury and the BBC inspired by his experiences on building sites and is working with Stephen Butchard and Left Bank as a writer on a forthcoming BBC drama. He lives in South London and is also a voluntary amateur boxing coach.

IN DEVELOPMENT

PRODUCTION (ROLE)	COMPANY	PROJECT DETAILS
This City Is Ours Writer of 2 x 60' episodes	Left Bank/ BBC 1	6 part original series by Stephen Butchard
City of Lions	Wild Mercury/ BBC
Flavius	It's All Made up Productions

SHORTS

PRODUCTION (ROLE)	PROJECT DETAILS
Seconds Out	Directed by Philip Barantini